

PROFILE

Makam (Sushitech)

Biography:

Makam is putting his own unique take on house music, which can be infectiously pumping & raw, carefully mixed that sweet touch of old school, but also truly soulful, slow moving & sexy. Guy Blanken started producing in 2002. The passion for the music he creates came from a long road of studio time, motivated by his family & friends, who all were active clubbers. Building his studio at home, Guy allowed himself to develop his unique sound and create his very own style. In 2006 Guy started his Makam project and this is where he currently stands today. With his Makam productions, he is building the perfect bridge between dance music and the deep & classic atmospheres." Releasing music on Soweso and Sushitech and an album planned for late 2009, Makam is ready to show his distinct perception of house music.

A makam, more than simply a selection of notes and intervals, is essentially a guide to compositional structure: any composition in a given makam will move through the notes of that makam in a more or less ordered way (in this, it resembles a tone row à la Schoenberg or Webern)
