Yossi Amoyal / Soulmate (Sushitech / Pariter)

Biography:

I was born in 1984 in Israel. Music has always been an integral part of my life. At home from an early age it's always been about music. My father was a trumpet player and my older brother is a classic piano player and a composer. At the age of seven I started to play on the drums, I played mostly rock music to start with and this gave me another take on the music world.

I first got in to electronic music when I was about 15 years old. This was after hearing the sounds of St. Germain, Kevin Saunderson and The Orb - it blew me away. It was a desire to share my passion for music with other people that got me in to djing. I've never dreamt of being a big "DJ" or someone that everybody knows. I just like to do my own thing and share my passion with people. From early on I was playing a lot of deep music, I found this much more interesting than the other genres around. The sound I go for has always been "underground" I've never felt the mainstream music, it's hard for me to hear music that someone made with the sole intention of making cash. From an artists point of view, I must understand the artist and hear soul in the music and the process the artist has undergone. After a couple of year's djing I started to produce my own music. I was fortunate enough to work with some special artists who are also close friends of mine, Hanan Revivo and Nir Tsfati. This has been a great source of inspiration for me and helped me to go forward with my productions. I have played and produced music in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, I've also been one of the editors on Radio Jerusalem. In 2004 I moved to London and open my own record labels, Sushitech / Pariter, together with my friend Matt du Jardin. Our goal for the labels is to release music that we love, and have a true desire for. With myself and the other artists that share the same vision. Since then I had the chance to work with lots of artists and release music from the likes of Russ Gabriel, Steve O'Sullivan,

Brothers' Vibe, Chez Damier, Delano Smith, Tobias, Baby Ford to name a few, and try to push this music I'm into forward and to develop my personal vision about this world I'm living in.

I'm currently living in Berlin and djing all around europe, working in the studio and trying to plough my thoughts and feelings in to the music. I'm also working with friends, Sushitech / Pariter artists who are helping me to find another side of myself. With these kind of various collaborations between us, we share ideas and try to create something new. As an artist and DJ I'm always trying to discover new music. I'm doing everything that I can feel, and there's always something that inspires me to express my feelings into the music.
